

Announcing the first CDC® Certification Course for Faith-Based Divorce Coaching!

This is an exclusive opportunity for CDC® Certified Divorce Coaches who feel called to work with those men or women seeking both support and direction in their divorce journey as well as strength and meaning in their connection to faith.

Wendy Kesser is the instructor for this inaugural eight-module course. Here is what she said about the experience of creating this program with an advisory group of five different faith perspectives:

"The Faith-Based Coaching Certification was developed to connect two of our most powerful coaching tools: the effective techniques of CDC's training and the values of our clients' traditions. It had an immediate impact on me as a coach and has already had a profound effect on my clients."

As we work our way through the eight two-hour modules, one each week for eight weeks, we'll map the Journey of Divorce—its steep ravines, high peaks, and rolling hills—to the various teachings and dimensions of faith. We'll examine the the myths and truths of marriage and divorce in this context. The road takes us on a search for meaning and a new relationship with ourselves and the great spirit or creator, which includes forgiveness, bridge-building, and ritual-making. As we explore stories that inspire, we are also laying the foundation for a new environment for thriving in our faith.

As with all CDC® Courses, sharing perspectives is an important part of this training. Hearing the stories that others share allows everyone's perspective to expand, forging a deeper connection to clients and more tools with which to support them.
